FACES DEFEATGeneral Kouropatkin Is Believed To Be in Desperate Straits.

OUTNUMBERED BY THE JAPANESE

Has a Hundred Thousand Men and 256 Guns To Fight a Hundred and Eighty-Five Thousand Japanese with Twenty-Five Cannon.

London, May 16.—The Japanese army is in force within forty miles from Liaoyang and all military observers here believe Gen. Kouropatkin is on the eve of a most disastrous defeat.

Gen. Kuroki and Oku, it is believed, plan to mask Port Arthur with a relatively small force and to endeavor to envelope and destroy Gen. Kouropatkin's force before it can be organized and reinforced.

The St. Petersburg estimate of the number of Japanese soldiers actually landed is taken as probably near the truth—that is, eight divisions of 23,000 men each, or at total of 184,000 men, with 50,000 horses and 25 guns.

There may be more, but available statistics show, even as matters stand, that the Russian field force is inferior to the armies advancing against it.

The Times estimates that Gen. Kouropatkin has no more than 100,000 men and 256 guns, apart from his heavy guns, to defend 100 miles of front from Newchwang to Mukden. These are drawn up parallel to the line of communications and there is only a single line of retreat.

Cripples Japanese Vessel.

Liaoyang, May 16.—The Russian fleet scored its first distinct naval success of the war on May 10 by the torpedoing and crippling, though not in sinking, of an armored Japanese cruiser in Tallenwan bay.

The Russian attack was carefully planned on May 10, while the Japanese squadron was concentrated outside of Dahn, devoting its whole attention to Tallenwan bay, and was carried out the same night.

The attacking force was not a regular torpedo boat, but was only a small naphtha launch in command of a young naval officer, who had with him three jacks. The launch moved on a small machine gun and carried three torpedoes.

Launch Carries Torpedoes.
When darkness fell the launch crept out of Port Arthur, hugging the shore, with no lights aboard and no glow from engines to betray its presence. It was late when the launch gained the outer line of the Japanese squadron. Slipping through the torpedo boat pickets and selecting the nearest warship, a big armored cruiser, the launch stole toward the great warship and succeeded in exploding against its side a single torpedo.

A deafening roar followed the explosion which echoed far ashore. Immediately flames enveloped the cruiser, which evidently was badly crippled.

The crew of the cruiser was seen to be fighting the fire, which they at last succeeded in extinguishing. A sister ship took the damaged vessel in tow and disappeared to the southeast.

Attacking Boat Is Beached.
The launch escaped the hot fire directed against it by the Japanese ships, but being unable to return to Port Arthur or to get into Dahn, it was beached not far from Dahn.

Only a few of the higher officers were aware of the plan, the success of which depended upon secrecy. The achievement raised the spirits of the Russians afloat and ashore, and the young naval officer who was the hero of the exploit was feted and recommended for the Cross of St. George.

The Russians, on May 11, apprehending that the presence of a Japanese squadron meant an attempt to capture Dahn, blew up the piers and quietly evacuated the place.

Two thousand Japanese have reoccupied the road to Sanchillip, again cutting off Port Arthur. A strong force is advancing against Polandien.

FROM INTERURBAN

Mrs. Edwin Coates Had Narrow Escape From Death Near Brown Farm Last Night.

Mrs. Edwin Coates who resides in the vicinity of Happy Hollow fell from the platform of an interurban car just below the Brown farm last night and one of her shoulders was seriously injured. The car had been signalled to stop and was slowing down when the lady arose from her seat and walked out onto the platform. As she did so she became dizzy and before anyone could spring to her rescue fell from the car. Her escape from more serious injury was regarded as almost miraculous by the horrified spectators.

PEONAGE IN THE SOUTH TO BE INVESTIGATED

Reports to Department of Justice Indicate That Negroes Are Being Held in Bondage.

Washington, May 16.—The department of justice is preparing again to take up the subject of peonage in the south. Additional reports have been received indicating that negroes are held in servitude. Assistant Attorney General Purdy has instructed the United States attorney for the western district of Louisiana to investigate alleged cases of peonage on plantations near Monroe, Ouachita parish.

Information regarding these cases came to the department from Judge McDaniel, assistant attorney for the southern district of Texas, to whom complaint had been made by relatives of the negroes alleged to be illegally held. Some of the stories told are sensational in the extreme, and if their truth is established the department will vigorously prosecute the offenders.

Judge McDaniel and Marshal Hanson of the southern Texas district have made some investigations, but have been unable to accomplish anything tangible because the places in which the negroes are said to be held in bondage are so far out of their jurisdiction. A feature of unusual interest is the intimation that some of the peace officers are in collusion with those alleged to be holding the negroes.

SURGEONS AND SCALPEL
RESTORE DIAMONDS

Prisoner Swallows Stone by Mistake, and Becoming Frightened Agrees to an Operation.

Galveston, Tex., May 16.—Having made restitution of a valuable diamond ring, Paul Clarkson, a prisoner in the county jail here, was not prosecuted.

Restitution was made with the aid of two surgeons, an X-ray machine, and scalpel. The stone, after being located by means of the machine, was removed from Clarkson's stomach and turned over to the proper owner. It is worth $250. The owner was so pleased that he paid for the operation and told the prisoner to go and feed on diamonds no more.

Clarkson was just getting ready to sail for New York when he was arrested. He denied his guilt at first, but while he was being searched the stone, which he held in his mouth, slipped down his gullet, by mistake, he says.

He had been annoyed; now he became thoroughly frightened, acknowledged his guilt, and begged that a surgeon be sent for. The surgeon doubted his word, until the shadowgraph was brought into play.

Clarkson rallied quickly from the shock of the operation, and is recovering rapidly.

Many Blind in One Eye.

Dr. Ernest Clarke of the Central London Ophthalmic hospital in giving evidence at an inquest not long ago said that many a person went through life with only one eye and did not know it. A British judge had lately found to his astonishment that he was blind in one eye, having lived more than forty years without suspecting his infirmity.

LIBERALS ON TOP
AT LOS ANGELES

NO PENALTY TO BE ATTACHED

Members Who See Fit to Indulge in Dancing, Card-Playing or Theater-Going Are to Be Allowed to Exercise Their Own Free Will.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 16.—Delegates to the Methodist general conference welcomed the opportunity for rest Sunday, not so much on account of the work they have had to do during the week past, but because of the strenuous sessions which everyone feels are to come.

First and foremost on the "battle slate" for the coming week is the question of whether the absolute prohibition of dancing, card-playing and theater-going, now in church rules, shall give way to a mere advisory restriction, with no penalty to be visited on the church members who may see fit to do any of these things.

Look for Lively Time.
This question is expected to furnish the most lively and probably the most acrid debate of any which will come before the conference. It is generally believed that those in favor of the more liberal policy will be successful when the matter comes to a final vote.

This conference is also slated to go on record on the subject of divorces and the re-marriage of divorced persons, and the debate on this matter is expected to develop some sensational features.

To Retire Five Bishops.

While enough visiting bishops and ministers volunteered their services to the pulpit supply committee to fill every pulpit in the city and suburban towns the great body of delegates rested and talked over past and coming events. The happenings at Saturday's session of the conference, when a vote was taken upon the retirement of five bishops, furnished a live topic of discussion. The general opinion of the delegates is that when the report is given it will show a decided majority in favor of the report of the episcopacy committee recommending the retirement of Bishops Vincent, Walden, Andrews, Mallalieu and Foss. The prompt and determined manner in which the subject was put through the conference in the face of strong efforts to postpone definite action caused much comment.

There are a certain number of delegates, especially among laymen, who are disposed to criticize the manner in which the five aged bishops were deprived of their high offices, but the leaders seem to feel relieved that the most unpleasant duty of the conference has been performed.

He is totally unfitted for harness and is uncomfortable to ride except at the gallop; this is his natural gait, and in it his movement is free, smooth, delightful and easy.—Sporting News.

Republican caucuses tonight.

STILL AT THE OLD DEADLOCK

Illinois Republicans Cannot Yet Agree Upon Any One Candidate.

[Special by Scripps-Mellae.]
Springfield, Ill., May 16.—On the surface of the situation it does not look any more as if a republican nomination for governor is to be made today than at any time last week. While the candidates are claiming a victory (they have no facts to substantiate the claims. Several dark horses are looming up. Judge Grosscup of Chicago, Graeme Stewart, a late candidate for mayor of Chicago, Congressman Reeves of LaSalle county are here. The convention met at two this afternoon and proceeded to the twenty-fifth ballot. Two-thirds of the delegates were present, but each delegation has power to cast a full vote of their delegation. The delegates are getting weary of the deadlock and liable to vote any way to settle the affair.

[Special by Scripps-Mellae.]
Paris, May 16.—The Matin today prints the opening paper of a series to be furnished by a London correspondent relating to an alleged exposure of treasonable plans concerning the fortifications at Toulon, which the Matin asserts is likely to approach the Dreyfus affair in importance. It is said the plans were about to be sold to English persons. An Italian named Fragola Piro, one of the three men involved, deserted by his companion, wrote to the Matin that he had papers which are said to have emanated from Italian and German sources. The papers are declared genuine.

Prosecution in the Gillespie Murder Claim To Have an Important Witness.

[Special by Scripps-Mellae.]
Birmingham, May 16.—An effort will be made to complete the Gillespie trial this week but it is hardly possible. A rumor this morning states that the state is seeking a woman who was witness to the shooting. It is alleged she made a statement that the pinn of the Gillespie home were shown the jury this morning. Ella Jones testified she heard Mrs. Carrie Barbour after the murder ask her husband if he knew anything about it. He replied he did not. Elizabeth Lemmon was at the Gillespie house after the murder and saw Marlon and Carrie Barbour peeping through a window.

WILL ORGANIZE THE CONVENTION

Returns From Saturday's Caucuses Show That the Administration Lost Heavily—The Fight Is Now On.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Madison, Wis., May 16.—Preliminary skirmishes, commencing Monday and other political leaders, have already put in an appearance on the ground of the fierce republican factional fight to take place in the state convention here Wednesday. Hotel accommodations are in course of erection and speculation is rife as to the complexion and ultimate outcome of the struggle.

Governor Robert M. La Follette leads the so-called "half-breed" faction in a campaign for a third term upon an issue for a state railway tax commission and the enactment of a primary election law and in the caucuses held throughout the state secured delegates, uncontested, to the number of 501. Anti-administration factionists led by United States Senator Spooner, the so-called "stalwarts," in a campaign for the nomination of Judge Emil Bensch of Manitowish, ex-lieutenant governor, or ex-Congressman S. A. Cook of Neenah, secured a combined strength from the caucuses of 468 uncontested delegates. Delegations whose number totals 96, which are in contest, are from Ashland, Dodge, Eau Claire, Grant, Milwaukee (13), Oconto and Dunn counties. On the merits of the several contests, conservative and impartial observers, and these are not to be found except from among staunch democrats, the anti-administration forces should receive 66 additional delegates, giving them a majority of three in the convention, or 634. The total number of delegates is 1,105. Little credence is given the lack of impartial decisions, however, because of the fact that the state central committee, which acts in Wisconsin as committee on credentials, is dominated by the governor's faction 19 to 4. And no person has any other idea but that the governor will use the committee to further his own ends in gaining control of the convention regardless of the merits of any of the contests. This situation has given rise to reports of an expected bolt by the "stalwarts" and indeed arrangements have been completed for the occupancy of another hall in the event of a bolt.

Factional differences are so deep seated and bitter that all suggestions of compromise are supposed as ridiculous. It seems entirely fair to predict that a bolt will take place the first day of the convention, that separate candidates for state offices and separate delegations to the national convention will be elected. Anti-administration partisans assert that the governor dare not risk his administration being discredited by the national organization in the Chicago convention, which would probably follow in view of the fact that both United States senators from Wisconsin would head the bolting convention's delegates and be sent. Color to these prognostications is lent by the fact that the "stalwart" faction has nothing to lose and everything to gain. Members of the state central committee were in Madison Saturday and others are here today, clustered with the governor and his advisers. They will caucus in the capital Tuesday on the contested delegations as will also the several district delegations. On this eve of the struggle it would seem that having the machinery in his control Governor La Follette has a slight advantage but the fact remains that since his political sun arose by an election to congress in 1887 he has never stood quite so near defeat at the hands of his own party, too, as he does today.

A statement issued today from the Bensch headquarters says: "We are jubilant and will go into the convention with a clear majority of from 65 to 80." Governor La Follette said last night: "Of course we have control of the convention by a majority of 100 or more but the state central committee must decide and we are confident as to the outcome."

Another Plan
It is reported that the anti-administration men have discovered a plan by which they can control the convention organization. It is claimed that in organizing the convention the delegates who have regular credentials whether or not contested will be allowed a seat and vote. This would give the anti-administration men a good working majority. The makeup of the next state central committee is certain to be against the governor.

Medical Plants.
A writer in the American Journal of Pharmacy declares that about three-fourths of all the medical plants used in the pharmacopoeia either grow wild or are cultivated in this country. Of the remaining fourth, he thinks that probably one-half could be grown in this country, leaving but a comparatively small number of plants that could not be economically grown.

British Soldiers' Rations.
"Rum and chocolate rations" have been the solace of the British soldier on homeward-bound transports. The very latest army reform is that for the rum a pint of British-brewed ale is to be served at a cost of 2d, or there is to be the alternative of half pint of chocolate for a half-penny. The old rum ration, which was half a gill of spirit mixed with one and one-half gills of water, cost a penny.

Republican caucuses tonight.

VICTORY SEEMS TO BE ASSURED

ON FACE OF RETURNS LA FOLLETTE IS DEFEATED.

CONSERVATIVES IN MAJORITY

St. Croix and Pierce Against Governor; Bayfield Divided; Dunn in Doubt—Lafayette and Sawyer for Governor.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

Madison, Wis., May 16.—What party leaders predict will be the most memorable republican state convention ever held in Wisconsin will be called to order Wednesday noon in the state university armory. Although the gathering is still two days in the future, the atmosphere of the capital city, hotel lobbies, quarters in the state house and the city streets, all suggest that the convention is immediately at hand. Leaders of both the opposing factions of the republican party in this state are rapidly arriving. Governor La Follette as early as Saturday afternoon began to summon the members of the state central committee favorable to him, and Monday is devoted to a secret caucus of those members in the executive offices on what shall be done when the whole committee meets Tuesday morning in regular session to hear contests and pass resolutions. Candidates Emil Baensch and S. C. Cook have arrived at their headquarters at the Park hotel and these rooms are thronged with delegates and friends. The La Follette faction is composed of republicans called "halfbreeds" and the opposition is known as the "stalwarts" camp. United States Senators John C. Spooner and Joseph V. Quarles are among the leaders of the opposition, as are most of the Wisconsin congressmen.

Both sides, with equal assurance and apparent conviction, are claiming to have a rightful majority of the convention. The fact is that neither side has a convincing majority without counting into its column some delegates whose seats in the convention are controverted and must be settled either by the state central committee or by the convention itself. Governor La Follette, however, has the advantage, being in possession of the state central committee, which in Wisconsin has usually served as the committee of credentials, and also having a substantial lead in the number of uncontested delegates. The stalwarts claim that they will go into the convention with from 65 to 80 majority, which means from 538 to 613 delegates. In this number they count practically all of the 100 or more votes that are contested. If the state central committee is allowed to accept the credentials on credentials a large majority of the contested delegates will be seated in favor of the "halfbreeds," as the state central committee stands 19 to 4 in favor of La Follette. The exact situation, so far as determined by the county caucuses, is as follows:

Votes in the convention 1,065
Necessary to control 533
La Follette has, uncontested 501
Baensch has uncontested 344
Cook has uncontested 121
Opposition combined uncontested 455
In contest or undetermined 109
La Follette must get, to control 32
Opposition must get, to control 78
The vote from Dunn county, 12, is undetermined, as the caucuses Saturday in this county were close that until the county conventions are held their complexion will not be determined. Both sides claim them. The votes from Ashland county, 12; Dodge, 19; Eau Claire, 18; one district of Grant, 11; about 13 in Milwaukee, and Oconto, 11, are in contest, and claimed by both sides. Upon the determination of these contests depends the control of the convention. And this point is what will cause the trouble, probably resulting in a belt of one faction or the other who will leave behind them the charge of "robbery" against the other. The stalwarts base their assurance upon the fact that in nearly all of the contests their delegates will come with the regularly certified credentials from the local authorities. In most of the contests the La Follette delegates will bring irregular or independent credentials, or no credentials at all other than ample affidavits showing the facts upon which they will base their claims in the hearings before the state central committee. The La Follette faction is relying on the maintenance of the custom of the state central committee determining the contests, and will insist that the state central committee-approved delegates have votes on all questions coming before the preliminary organization, even to the determination of whether or not the decision of the state central committee shall be approved. If this program of action is approved the "halfbreeds" will surely win. The stalwarts insist that the delegates coming with the regular credentials of the local party officers must have seats in the convention until thrown out by a vote of the convention, the vote being pre-

If this procedure be the program, the stalwarts will prevail and the third term aspirations of Governor La Follette will be injected into a cockpit hat. The state central committee usually selects the temporary chairman and for this place Irvine L. Lenroot of Superior, speaker of the assembly and a capable parliamentarian as well as a staunch La Follette man, has been slated. On this there may be a contest, but that is not anticipated.

Easter Lilies.
The rise of the Easter lily is one of the most sensational features of greenhouse floriculture in America during the last quarter of a century. American florists raise about 5,000,000 Easter lilies a year. Assuming that only half of these plants are sold; that each bears only two flowers (a good plant should have six to eight) and that the public pays 50 cents a bud, it would seem that the American people spend at least $2,500,000 for Easter lilies every year.

HAROLD ROSS IS A PRIZE WINNER

Another Janesville Boy Secured a Dollar Prize in The Gazette Contest.

Adventures of a Young Boy

One morning in August in the year 1850, just after the war, a boy named John Smith and familiarly known as Happy Jack, started for the barn whistling "Boston Gals."

He intended to start for South Dakota that day with his parents. Jack was a tall manly youth of fifteen years. His parents liked to live in a wild country and were ever moving westward at the approach of civilization. Jack had just received a rifle from an uncle for whom he was named.

Three of the neighbors' families were going with the Smiths. They started in good season with their prairie schooners which were loaded with supplies and plenty of ammunition.

The first week went quietly by, except that they were followed by a band of Indians and were stopped by a party of mounted police who scattered the Indians.

The next day they crossed the Mississippi river and a great old time they had. The next night they camped in a pleasant valley in Minnesota, with timber for their campfire and grass for their horses. They placed their wagons in a circle and retired to the center after setting a watch.

Here they were attacked by a band of Sioux Indians, who fought them all night by the light of the moon.

The Indians retired after losing three-fourths of their number, while the whites lost two killed and three wounded, besides much damage done to their wagons. They spent the following day and night recasting their energies and repairing their wagons.

Three days later they reached Fort Thompson, and spent a day and night there. Here they were joined by three families which made it much safer traveling. Jack's father knew the commander of the fort, and he gave them an escort of cavalry to within three marches of the next fort. Jack bought a pony at Fort Thompson. He was hunter and scout for the party, and many a time he was chased by the Indians.

On the day that the cavalry left them, he had started earlier than the rest, and had gone about three miles, when he was captured by Indians. He thought they were going to burn him, and knew he would have to leave a good trail if he expected his friends to get back again, so he tore off portions of his clothing and dropped them occasionally.

After he had traveled about ten miles, he saw the cavalry less than half a mile away, and he immediately began to shout at the top of his voice. The men heard him and dashed down and scattered the Indians. He took one of the Indian's ponies and his own rifle from a dead Indian and started for camp. Two days later they reached Fort Phillips and were soon settled in their new cabin.

Five years later Jack married one of his neighbor's daughters, and settled on his little farm. Jack is now one of the richest farmers in Smith county, South Dakota, and is surrounded by his many children and grandchildren.

TOBACCO TALK OF MUCH INTEREST

WHAT IS BEING DONE IN THE LEAF BUSINESS.

Small Sales of Leaf Are Reported From All Over the County—Warehouses Closing.

What business has been done in this locality in the tobacco line was done during the latter part of last week and was somewhat of a reminder of days long ago and a great surprise to the present time. The only salivation of the dealers this season is to fall back onto the crop of 1902 and it is being picked up as readily as that of the crop of the year preceding, regardless of what condemnation it was put to during the past year.

But it seems that the market has again gone back to its sluggish state so far this week and the only firm that broke from its listless state and made a deal was that of L. B. Carle & Son, by selling 2000s of 1901 and 1902 and buying 100s of the same. Fisher & Fisher sampled a 3000s lot of "02."

The sales that were made last week were those by F. S. Holmes of 7000s of 1901-'02; S. B. Headles, 3000s 1901-'02 and Fisher & Fisher, 5000s and G. H. Rumrill 1810s 1902.

Mr. Baues bought 300 cs of Fisher & Fisher, 570s of H. S. McGiffin, 1000s in Edgerton and 1000s in Stoughton, all low grade fillers and blenders. The Fishers also bought 1900s of 1902.

The warehouses here are gradually closing down and in another fortnight there will be less than half a dozen running their assorting rooms. It is reported that the American Cigar Co. closed their house at Broadford for the season, last Friday.

There is little change to note in the market conditions except that the volume of transactions in the '03 crop have fallen off somewhat during the week, says the Edgerton Tobacco Reporter. There is still a good deal of riding being done and while the majority of the sales are at low figures, dealers are looking for the better grades for which they are willing to give larger prices than those usually quoted. Old leaf of '02 and '01 is being sought after in country hands.

Deliveries at the warehouses are continually coming in and at most of the packing points there is work is slight for some weeks yet.

The plant buds are making good progress and need only warm weather to bring them along very rapidly. The shipments out of storage reach 10 carloads, 4800s, and 3 cars of bundle goods, from this market to all points for the week past.

Several passengers were left at the St. Paul depot this morning on account of the Milwaukee train being a few minutes late. The train for Chicago left the station just as the Milwaukee train was pulling in.

District Atty. McNamara INTERESTED IN A MAN-HUNT

Sixty Men Sent Out to Capture Desperate Character on Thorn Apple River.

District Attorney Frank McNamara who is a former Janesville resident is one of the interested parties in a man-hunt that is being conducted in the northern woods near Hayward. A man by the name of Dietz has threatened to shoot any man who crosses the dead line to close the Cameron dam on the Thorn Apple river and the lumberjacks have been compelled to abandon a drive of 10,000,000 feet of logs which cannot be brought down until the dam is closed. A posse of sixty was sent out to capture the man dead or alive on Saturday.

SILK WORM AS AN EXPERIMENT

Agricultural Department Takes Up the Matter for Study and Research.

Several persons in Janesville have raised silk worms for the novelty of the work and for the money they have received for the products of the little animals. The Department of Agriculture at Washington is investigating the culture and the following from this bureau may interest many.

"It is hoped that it may in time be developed to such an extent as to prove of benefit to those members of families whose time is not altogether occupied in other ways, and also to other persons in a small way as a side issue. To persons wishing to experiment, and who can furnish proper food for the worms, the Department is distributing free of charge a small quantity of silkworm eggs and also a manual of instructions. The proper food for silkworms consists of leaves from the different varieties of white mulberry tree and the Osage orange. The paper mulberry (with the fuzzy leaves) is not suitable, nor is the common red mulberry. As the season is now open, application for the eggs should be made at once, and must be accompanied by a statement as to the number and kind of mulberry trees or the amount of Osage orange which the applicant possesses; otherwise the eggs will not be sent. If the variety of the mulberry is not known to the applicant, a sample of large leaves should be sent to the Department. The Department of Agriculture buys the cocoons which are worms spin, paying for them (after they have been dried) 75 cents to $1 a pound according to their quality. The work will prove an interesting pastime for women and children who can devote to it odd minutes during the day.

NEW FISH BAIT THAT IS UNIQUE.

Embalsmed Minnows to Tempt the Willy Bass and Pickerel from the Depths.

Numerous baits and traps have been invented for the capture of the wily bass and other game fish, which are sought after by the followers of Isaac Walton. The latest is the embalsmed minnow.

This is not a joke. It is a real, embalsmed minnow, which is ready for the hook. The minnow is not alone embalsmed. The frog is also served in bottles at so much per.

A bottle of minnows can be purchased for a quarter of a dollar. The package contains a dozen or more of minnows, which look good in the bottle. Whether this class of bait is a success or not remains to be seen in this part of the world, where they have been lately introduced.

One of Janesville's enthusiastic anglers was asked as to the merits of the new discovery. He said that he would sooner take along a box of minnows for bait, for if the canned variety did not produce results as a bait, it could be eaten in case a fellow became hungry.

LOCAL LEAF FIRM WON AT SYRACUSE

Carle & Son Secure Possession of Tobacco Valued at $368.12 on Replevin Action.

L. R. Carle & Son of this city have been awarded the possession of nine cases of tobacco valued at $368.12 by a jury in Syracuse, N. Y., in a replevin action brought against Alteman George Freeman and B. Danow & Son, bankrupt leaf tobacco dealers of that city. The financial statement made by B. Danow & Son to L. R. Carle & Co. on May 8, 1903, giving their assets at $12,300, liabilities $900, and cash on hand and in the bank $1,200, and the further statement of the bank bookkeeper that at the close of business on May 8 the firm had but $8 on deposit were important factors in the trial. The attorney for the Janesville concern charged that Danow & Son stole the tobacco from his clients.

CHAS. B. HANFORD—APPEARS AT THE GRAND TOMORROW NIGHT

One well known critic in reviewing Mr. Charles B. Hanford's performance of "Petruchio" in "The Taming of the Shrew" wrote as follows: "Those who have seen Mr. Hanford in this play know of the grandeur of his performance, those who have not seen him can have no idea of the masterful interpretation of the role of 'Petruchio.' Excellent as he has been in many heroic roles, he has never appeared to such advantage as he does in the congenial role of Petruchio, the roistering, happy-go-lucky, buoyant, self-willed fellow, as good at heart as he is irresistible at humor."

CONVICTS TRY TO BUST TRUST

Inmates of Michigan Prison Plot Against "Magnates" in Cell.

Marquette, Mich., May 16.—Convicts in the state penitentiary have petitioned the authorities to dissolve a "trust" which they hold is in violation of the federal laws. The trust magnates are convicts, who have established a grocery in their cells and trade "out of hours." The petition is brought by would-be rivals, who failed to establish competitive concerns. The partners are A. V. Freeman, serving five years for embezzlement; Edmund Holzhay, a desperado who terrorized the peninsula and a third convict named Manning.

When told that she would die Miss Howells declared that the shooting was intentional. Louden fled, but was captured at a neighboring farmhouse. He is 27 years old and the young woman 17.

Radical Press of Cuba Indignant Over Methods Adopted by Foreigners.

Havana, May 16.—The Radical press of Cuba is urging Congress to expel the French and Filipino Catholics who have arrived here in large numbers during the last six months. For the first three months they located in this city, but since then they have migrated to interior towns and have started several missions. Their methods are distasteful to the Cuban Catholics, who have appealed to the clergy to have them expelled.

JAPANESE INFANTRY SCOUTING IN NORTHERN KOREA.

...Forty Years Ago...

Janesville Daily Gazette, Monday, May, 16, 1864.—The habit of shooting has been carried to such an extent among the farmers that my family are afraid to go around the yard for fear of being shot.

I now give notice that unless the practice of shooting on my premises is stopped, and especially on the Sabbath, I shall put the law in force in such cases made and provided. E. P. Doty.

A Nice Arrangement.—The new time table of the Milwaukee & Prairie du Chien road is a great betterment to our citizens, so far as reaching Milwaukee is concerned. They can now leave here at 11 o'clock in the evening, and take a sleeping car at Milton, enjoy a good night's rest and wake up in Milwaukee in time for business, and having spent the whole day in that city, return to Janesville the same night.

Attention.—The members of Section 1, Battery A, W. A. M., are hereby notified to meet at the Common Council rooms on Tuesday evening, first, at 7:30 o'clock. A full attendance is then required as then will be decided whether the organization be kept up, or the arms, etc., be surrendered to the state. By order, R. B. Treat, Lieut. Commander.

Disgraceful.—A number of young bloods, said to be from Beloit visited our city yesterday, became intoxicated, and made fools of themselves generally. Their conduct was disgraceful, and a decided annoyance to peacefully inclined citizens. We regret that we could not ascertain their names, as we should publish them were they known to us. They drove a span of grey horses attached to a double carriage. The team would have been vastly better off in sober hands. It is to be hoped that when another delegation from our sister city visits us on Sunday it will conduct itself in a manner more becoming the worth and intelligence of that place.

The first big expenditure a merchant makes for advertising makes his teeth chatter. It is the same when a boy makes his first plunge and tries to learn to swim. But very few people ever lose their lives in learning to swim—very few. Even a less number lose their fortunes in learning to advertise.

THE COMING CONTEST.

The factional fight which has been waged in caucuses and conventions, during the past month, closed with unabated interest last Saturday night and the final act in the exciting drama comes on at the state convention this week.

While both factions claim to have won, it is a significant fact that every contest in counties where majorities were close, has been decided by the administration forces. This is evidence not only of weakness but of doubt, and shows the desperate conditions in which the administration forces are placed.

The victory claimed by the third termers, is of such doubtful complexion, that the Governor and his army of state employees, kept up the fight until the last county had voted.

The State Central Committee is composed largely of men who are in sympathy with the chief executive, and they are expected to give him the benefit of the doubt on all questions and manufacturers the doubt if necessary to complete the program.

It remains to be seen whether the will of the people or the mandates of the dictator will control. The Gazette has great confidence in the people, and that they will win in the present contest should not be a matter of doubt.

The Governor has made a sorry spectacle of himself during the pre-convention campaign. His fight on Congressman Babcock in the third district, was the introduction of methods never before used in the state, and his personal appearance in the campaign has disgusted many of his most staunch supporters. Should his forces succeed in stealing the convention, the victory will be destitute of both glory and honor.

La Folletteism has had its day. It has been a menace to the state, and would have proved a curse in full and undisputed control. No man who assumes to be greater, or more righteous, than his party, can long succeed as a leader. The Governor possesses elements of strength which are rare, but he lacks balance, and this always contributes to weakness.

The opportunity of his life came to him when first elected four years ago. Backed by a united party, and with a legislature disposed to work in harmony, he ignored or insulted every man who dared to question his policy and assumed at a single stride the role of dictator.

The patience of men equally as well equipped and informed, was put to the severest test, until there came a time when the grace of forbearance ceased to be a virtue, and the fight was on. He has misruled the state for four years, with the air and disposition of a monarch. The people have grown weary and his administration will go down in history as a failure.

WHO SHALL BE MAYOR?

The republicans of the city have been so much interested in state and county politics, that matters of importance nearer home have not received much attention.

As a result the party caucuses to be held this evening to select delegates to nominate a candidate for mayor, are likely to be lightly attended, and with little interest as to results.

This is unfortunate, as the office of mayor is important. Two or three names are mentioned as candidates. The Gazette has no knowledge of Mr. Carpenter's aspirations except through rumor, but the paper understands that both Mr. Thoroughgood and Mr. Richardson are making an active canvass for support.

If these two names are the only ones presented at the convention, it remains for the republicans to say which one shall receive the nomination. Both are familiar with the duties of the office. Mr. Richardson had the misfortune to be in the executive chair, while the council was under a cloud, and he doubtless has the feeling that he would like to be vindicated before the people. This is perfectly natural and the same feeling would be shared by any man under similar circumstances. Mr. Richardson possesses the qualifications for a good presiding officer, and this fact is generally recognized.

Mr. Thoroughgood is equally familiar with the duties of the position and his former administration gave very general satisfaction. He is largely interested in manufacturing industries, and enjoys the reputation of being a conservative and at the same time an enterprising citizen. He is also endorsed by the Municipal League.

The two names are before the party for consideration. The Gazette has no candidate in advance of the convention, and will cheerfully support the nominee.

Editor Bok, of the Ladies' Home Journal, has stirred up a great commotion among the patent medicine men, and inherited a libel suit as well by his recent attack on proprietary remedies. Mr. Bok is a good advertiser, but he overshot the mark.

The Antics of the democratic party are not attracting so much attention just now, as they would but for the commotion going on within the ranks of the republican party.

The Hearst boom appears to be on the wane, and conservative democracy may again gain control. It will be a good thing for the party as well as for the country, if the Parker element wins out.

There is not enough harmony in the atmosphere to make it oppressive and it all depends upon the action of the convention as to whether conditions improve.

It may prove a little difficult to steal a convention in broad daylight.

There will be business all along the line at Madison this week.

PRESS COMMENT.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Stranger things have happened than the success of Edward C. Wall. It may be a "long shot" and not a good bet at any odds so far offered, but—

Chicago Tribune: The Kansas City Journal suggests "Pie" as the democratic platform for this year. That is certainly short enough but it will be objected to as being both short and crusty.

Ashland Press: Both sides claim to be driving the loaded wagon in the state campaign. There is a misunderstanding somewhere.

Madison Democrat: If the Russians intend to drive the Japs into the sea they should drive them the other way. The sea is not in the direction the Japs are going.

Scranton Tribune: Returns from the various democratic conventions indicate that the contents of Mr. Hearst's cask have not been properly distributed.

Superior Telegram: They have an organization at Sioux City consisting of persons who have no verminiform appendix. Every city has an exclusive set of some kind.

Chicago News: As the Tibetans keep on getting themselves massacred in the most insubordinate and disrespectful manner Great Britain may feel obliged to enact reprisals by taking their territory away from them.

Denver Post: An exchange says the names of the ill-fated Russian ships Petropavlovsk and Bezostrovsky will go down to history side by side, but it is questionable if the avenue of fame is wide enough to admit of this. They may have to be driven down tandem.

Chicago Inter Ocean: Talking about the prospects of bringing about a sane Fourth, something should be done to stay the destroying hand of the man who shoots off his grandfather's little brass cannon to please the children.

Philadelphia Ledger: The British authorities seized a mysterious torpedo-boat building on the Tyne the other day, which was probably destined for one of the belligerent nations. Great Britain has learned a great deal about international law since our Alabama claims case came up.

Chicago Chronicle: The mothers' congress less making haste too rapidly when it devotes the opening of its session to the care of infants and the next day undertakes to solve the divorce problem. There ought to be some phases of juvenile life worth discussing between the cradle and the divorce court.

La Crosse Leader-Press: If the stalwarts who are delegates and the stalwarts who are not delegates but are enthusiastic fall to act as they should, according to the governor's standards, there are apt to be rounded up and confined in a "bull-pen" such as that occupied by all citizens of the Colorado mining districts who object to military rule. It behooves the stalwarts to keep away from the state convention or restrain their enthusiasm.

Appleton Post: The Neenah board of health has issued an edict against kissing and has asked that the custom, as old as Adam and Eve, be discontinued "for the general good of the public" will be sacrificed to the exquisite rapture of individuals.

New York Times: The doom of the peroxide blonde has been sealed. Throughout the past theatrical season it has been evident that the brunettes has been regaining her place in the choruses of Broadway, and now one of the leading purveyors of musical comedy has made it his settled policy to permit no false blonde to appear in his show. As it is the avowed aim of the modern theatrical manager to follow public taste, not to lead it, it is obvious that, off the stage as on it, the vogue of the chemical blonde has come to an end.

Eau Claire Leader: If there is one thing more than another to cause the republicans of this state to be humiliated and mortified it is the action of Governor Robert M. La Follette becoming himself by running to and fro in the state frantically imploring republicans, democrats, prohibitionists and socialists to vote for his delegates in republican caucuses. He and his lackeys have proclaimed from the house-tops, that he was choice of an overwhelming majority for a third term—yet, he and they, have resorted to all kinds of disreputable means to carry caucuses and conventions. They have spent thousands of dollars on the state—and where it has come from, only he and his friends know.

The attraction is one of the very best offered in Janesville this season and merits the large patronage which it will undoubtedly receive.

Jews in the World.

Prof. Haman of Basel has recently taken a rough census of the Jews of the world, and comes to the conclusion that they now number nearly 21,000,000. Of these a good two-thirds are found in Europe. Russia comes first with 5,500,000 (40,000 in Asiatic Russia), then Austria-Hungary with 1,800,000, Germany with 568,000, Roumania with 390,000, Great Britain 200,000, Turkey 120,000, Holland 97,000, France 77,000, Italy 50,000.

SIDE DOOR WAS NOT RIGHT ONE

OLLIE SATHERS MISTAKES DOORS AND IS KILLED.

STEPS INTO THE CELLARWAY

Falling Seven Feet and Died From Rupture of a Blood Vessel in His Head.

Mistaking the cellar-door for the side entrance to Sheridan's saloon caused the death of Oie Sathers Sunday afternoon. In his haste to gain an entrance to the forbidden bar Sathers opened the door leading into the cellar and pitched headlong down into the basement of seven feet. He was picked up by persons who heard him groaning and despite the assurances of the physician called he would soon be all right, died at half-past ten last evening in the police station in the city hall.

The two doors leading to the place and into the cellar of Sheridan's saloon are side by side on Pleasant street. Sathers evidently opened the wrong door and thinking he was in the right place stepped to his death. He fell striking heavily on the stone sides of the steps and the hard floor and ruptured a blood vessel in his head, which caused his death. Dr. Judd was at once called but the injury did not seem serious and the man was removed to the city hall. About ten o'clock he grew rapidly worse and Dr. Pember was called, but he died at half-past ten.

Sathers came to Janesville three years ago from Minneapolis. He was a printer by trade and has worked at this at odd times. He has lived at the Illinois house during his residence here and according to Mr. Hilton has not been a regular drinking man. He called at the postoffice for his mail yesterday, and it is not thought he was drunk at the time of the accident. He leaves no family as far as is known.

JANESVILLE MEN HAD MANY CASES

Many Attorneys From This City Appeared Before the State Supreme Court.

Last week was Rock county's week in the supreme court at Madison. Stanley D. Tallman was admitted as an attorney Thursday and a number of prominent Janesville lawyers have argued appeals from the circuit court for Rock county. The case of Taylor against the Indian Ford Water Power company was settled by stipulation of the opposing parties and therefore the appeal was not brought to argument. The case of Smith, appellant, against the city of Beloit, et al., respondents, involving the laying out of a street, was argued by William Reger, Jr., and William Reger, Jr., for the appellant and A. A. Jackson and J. C. Root for the respondents. The case of the Weyburn & Briggs Co., appellant, against D. D. Benia, respondent, was argued for the appellant by E. D. McGowan and for the respondent by M. G. Jeffris and M. O. Mount. The appeal of the Valentine School of Telegraphy against Jones was argued for the appellant school by A. E. Matheson and for the respondent Jones by G. E. Pierce, M. G. Jeffris and M. O. Mount. At argued the appeal of Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York against William Reger, who appeared for the respondent, Bostwick. The court completed the hearing of arguments of appeals on the present assignment Saturday and takes a recess to the latter part of the month, when decisions in these cases will be handed down.

FIRST DUTY IS TO ONE'S SELF

REV. HENDERSON'S EVENING SERMON ON "SELF CULTURE."

EACH RESPONSIBLE FOR A LIFE

That May Make the World Happier and Better if It Is Devoted to the Good.

"Self Culture" was the topic of Rev. J. T. Henderson's sermon at the First Presbyterian church last evening. He chose his text from Paul's first letter to Timothy, Chapter 4, Verse 10—"Take heed unto thyself." There is one thing you can do—no other can—which thing accomplished will make the world happier and better. You, yourselves, will pass away but the thing that you have done will continue in ever widening circles through the cycles of years. For in so far as you better your own life, so will you better the whole world. God placed us here to develop ourselves to the highest possible perfection. To be self-centered in this respect, therefore, is not to be selfish.

The Time Is Now

So we find Paul urging Timothy, if he would accomplish the greatest good to "Take heed unto thyself." So many men seem to think that their second childhood is the time for acquiring good habits. If we are to develop our own characters we must begin now and now.

Exercise in Godliness

With all truth in its infinite divisions at our command, we need only take note of a few things. The first thing to know is that the soul is of divine origin and that we are to take our bearings from God. The inscrutable eye saw in the beginning the course that we could run and life is the safe guide. We will therefore be cultivating ourselves to the highest degree when we exercise ourselves in godliness. Physical exercise has its temporary value but the time comes when we shall throw off this material garment. Godliness is for all time. The Christian is not called to balance himself between the world and Christ but to live as near the good line as possible. He must turn from everything that is wrong and welcome every angelic messenger. He must be as a sample. And what a responsibility that is! "Fathers be careful where you go for I am stepping in your footsteps." How many walk oblivious of the little feet that follow! We must square our lives to His teachings and live in the sunlight of Christ's gospel. God has painted on your soul the image of His Son. Take heed unto thyself and He will make something beautiful of your life.

WALTON PYRE AND HIS COMPANY

Former Evansville School Teacher Who Is Successful on the Stage.

Walton Pyre, who only a few years ago, resigned an excellent position in the faculty of the University of Wisconsin, to go on the stage, has surprised even his most sanguine friends by his rapid progress in the dramatic profession. Mr. Pyre is in part a Rock county boy, having taught at the Evansville high school for several years. During his career at the university he exhibited an unmistakable talent and many predicted a future for him. Within two months after joining the Oils Skinner company in a minor position he leaped into fame by his brilliant acting in a prominent role which, owing to the illness of the actor, William Norris, he was obliged to assume on only a few hours' notice.

During last summer Mr. Pyre headed a company, playing an excellent romantic comedy, "A Russian Honey-moon," which was produced here last June. The present summer season he will offer this play, and of well, two others, viz., "Prince Karl," long an important part of Richard Mansfield's repertoire, and "Esmeralda," a charming play of the south, by William Gillette, author of "Sherlock Holmes." Mr. Pyre engaged his own company in New York while playing with the Rehan-Skinner company, and at the same time perfected the details of his new and elaborate production. The stock company supporting Mr. Pyre is recruited from only prominent companies, and have played with such prominent organizations as Julia Marlowe, Otis Skinner, Ada Rehan, Mrs. Leslie Carter, E. H. Sothern, etc. Aiming as he is to offer us a better grade of amusement than the average and a company of high intelligence, and perfect refinement, there ought surely to be a response from the play-going public such as will bring returns commensurate with the great expense involved.

Miss Fola La Follette will be seen in the caste in prominent roles, this being her professional debut. Mr. Fogg, the famous quarter back of the university team, is in the city making arrangements for the production of Mr. Pyre's company here on the nights of June 2 and 3. In all probability "Prince Karl" and "Esmeralda" will be the two productions presented here. Mr. Pyre is so well known in Janesville and has so many friends in the city that his coming with a company of his own should create much interest. It is probable that an informal reception of some kind will be given Mr. Pyre and the company one of the two nights they are in the city.

STRAW DUMMY WAS PLACED ON TRACKS

And Run Over by Motorman Rhodes at Willow Park Last Night—Looking for "Jokers."

As the interurban car due in Janesville at nine o'clock was approaching the curve at Willow Park at a speed of forty miles an hour last evening, Motorman Fred Rhodes saw what appeared to be the body of a man lying across the rails. He threw the car to a standstill but not before the wheels had passed over the prostrate form. Then he descended from the platform to pick up the supposedly lifeless corpse. What he found was a straw dummy, attired in a red sweater and sufficiently human in appearance to deceive even the suspicious at a short distance. The interurban officials are looking for the perpetrators of this alleged joke. To suddenly reverse a car going at high speed is apt to flatten every wheel on the trucks and this invariably means an expenditure of a hundred or more dollars in repairs. Where a life is involved the expense is not taken into consideration, but the company does not propose to be imposed upon with this variety of ghastly pranks.

"I took no precaution."

"And needed none, I suppose."

"And needed none."

"When was this visit paid, Mr. Jeffrey—before or after your wife pulled the trigger which ended her life? You need not hesitate to answer."

"I do not." The elegant gentleman before us had acquired a certain fierceness. "Why should I? Certainly you don't think that I was there at the same time she was. It was not on the same night even. So much the walls should have told you and probably did, or my wife's uncle, Mr. David Moore. Was he not your informant?"

"No. Mr. Moore has failed to call our attention to this fact. Did you meet Mr. Moore during the course of your visit to a neighborhood over which he seems to hold absolute sway?"

"Not to my knowledge. But his house is directly opposite, and as he has little to do but muse himself with what he can see from his front window I concluded that he might have observed me going in."

"You entered by the front door, then?"

"How else?"

"And on what night?"

Mr. Jeffrey made an effort. These questions were visibly harassing him.

"The night before the one—the one which ended all my earthly happiness," he added in a low voice.

Coroner Z. cast a glance at me. I remembered the lack of dust on the nest of little tables from which the upper one had been drawn forward to hold the candelabrum and gently shook my head. The coroner's eyebrows went up, but none of his disbeliever crept into his voice as he made this additional statement:

"The night on which you failed to return to your own house."

Instantly Mr. Jeffrey betrayed by a nervous action, which was quite involuntary, that his outward calm was slowly giving way under a flood of questions for which he had no ready reply.

"It was odd your not going home that night," the coroner coldly pursued. "The misunderstanding you had with your wife immediately after breakfast must have been a very serious one, more serious than you have hitherto acknowledged."

"I had rather not discuss the subject," protested Mr. Jeffrey. Then as if he suddenly recognized the official character of his interlocutor he hastily added, "Unless you positively request me to do so, in which case I must."

"I am afraid that I must insist upon it," returned the other. "You will find that it will be insisted upon at the inquest, and if you do not wish to subject yourself to much unnecessary unpleasantness you had better make clear to us today the cause of that special quarrel which to all intents and purposes led to your wife's death."

"I will try to do so," returned Mr. Jeffrey, rising and pacing the room in his intense restlessness. "We did have some words. Her conduct the night before had not pleased me. I am naturally jealous, vilely jealous, and I thought she was a little frivolous at the German ambassador's ball. But I had no idea she would take my sharp speeches so much to heart. I had no idea that she would care so much or that I should care so much. A little jealousy is certainly pardonable in a bridegroom, and if her mind had not already been upset she would have remembered how I loved her and hopefully waited for a reconciliation."

"You did love your wife, then? It was you and not she who had a right to be jealous? I have heard the contrary stated. It is a matter of public gossip that you loved another woman previous to your acquaintance with Miss Moore, a woman whom your wife regarded with sisterly affection and subsequently took into her new home."

"Miss Tuttle?" Mr. Jeffrey stopped in his walk to fling out this ejaculation. "I admire and respect Miss Tuttle," he went on to declare, "but I never loved her—not as I did my wife," he finished, but with a certain hard accent, apparent enough to a sensitive ear.

"Pardon me, it is as difficult for me to put these questions as it is for you to hear them—were you and Miss Tuttle ever engaged?"

I started. This was a question which half of Washington had been asking itself for the last three months.

Would Mr. Jeffrey answer it, or, remembering that these questions were rather friendly than official, refuse to satisfy a curiosity which he might well consider intrusive? The set aspect of his features promised little in the way of information, and we were both surprised when a moment later he responded with a grim emphasis hardly

SCIENCE PREVENTS BALDNESS.

The Fatal Germ and Its Remedy Now Facts of Science.

It is the rarest thing in the world for a man to be necessarily bald. No man whose hair is not dead at the roots, need be bald if he will use Newbro's Herpicide, the new scalp antiseptic. Herpicide destroys the germ that cuts the hair off at the root, and cleans the scalp of dandruff and leaves it in a perfectly healthy condition. Mr. Mannett, in the Maryland Block, Butte, Mont., was entirely bald. In less than a month Herpicide had removed the enemies of hair growth, and nature did its work by covering his head with thick hair an inch long, and in six weeks he had a normal suit of hair. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

casting aside with one impulsive gesture his hitherto imperfectly held restraint, he cried out sharply:

"Why do you ask me these questions in tones of such suspicion? Is it not plain enough that my wife took her own life under a misapprehension of my state of mind toward her? Why should you feel it necessary to rake up these personal matters, which, however interesting to the world at large, are of a painful nature to me?"

"Mr. Jeffrey," retorted the other, with a sudden grave assumption of dignity not without its effect in a case of such serious import, "we do nothing without purpose. We ask these questions and show this interest because the charge of suicide which his hitherto been made against your wife is not entirely sustained by the facts. At least she was not alone when she took her life. Some one was in the house with her."

It was startling to observe the effect of this declaration upon him.

"Impossible!" he cried out in a protest as forcible as it was agitated.

"You are playing with my misery. She could have had no one there; she would not. There is not a man living before whom she would have fired that deadly shot unless it was myself—unless it was my own wretched, miserable self."

The remorseful whisper in which those final words were uttered carried them to my heart, which for some strange and unaccountable reason had been gradually turning toward this man. But my less easily affected companion, seeing his opportunity and possibly considering that it was this gentleman's right to know in what a doubtful light he stood before the law, remarked with as light a touch of irony as was possible:

"You should know better than we in whose presence she would choose to die—if she did so choose; also who would be likely to tie the pistol to her wrist and blow out the candle when the dreadful deed was over."

The laugh which seemed to be the only means of violent expression remaining to this miserable man was kept down by some amazing thought which seemed to paralyze him. Without making any attempt to refute a suggestion that fell just short of a personal accusation, he sank down in the first chair he came to and became, as it were, lost in the vision of that ghastly ribbon tying and the solitary blowing out of the candle upon this scene of mournful death. Then, with a struggling sense of having heard something which called for answer, he rose blindly to his feet and managed to let fall these words:

"You are mistaken. No one was there, or, if any one was, it was not I. There is a man in this city who can prove it."

But when Mr. Jeffrey was asked to give the name of this man he showed confusion and presently was obliged to admit that he could neither recall his name nor remember anything about him, but that he was some one whom he knew well and who knew him well. He affirmed that the two had met and spoken near Soldiers' home shortly after the sun went down and that the man would be sure to remember this meeting if we could only find him.

As Soldiers' home was several miles from the Moore house and quite out of the way of all his accustomed haunts, Coroner Z. asked him how he came to be there. He replied that he had just come from the Rock Creek cemetery; that he had been in a wretched state of mind all day, and, possibly being influenced by what he had heard of the yearly vigils Mr. Moore was in the habit of keeping there, had taken a notion to stroll among the graves in search of the rest and peace of mind he had failed to find in his aimless walks about the city. At least, that was the way he chose to account for the meeting he mentioned. Falling in to reverie again, he seemed to be trying to recall the name which at this moment was of such importance to him. But it was without avail, as he presently acknowledged.

CELL FOR BIGAMOUS MINISTER

Man Who Posed as Preacher Pleads Guilty at Sioux Falls, S. D.

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 16.—"Rev." Charles A. Lyons pleaded guilty to the charge of bigamy and was sentenced to four years in the penitentiary. Lyons first appeared in Sioux Falls a year ago, professed to be a minister of the gospel, and, as he bore credentials which appeared genuine, he was taken into the confidence of many of the church people. Last summer he was married to Miss Emma Purvis. After a brief married life Lyons disappeared. His wife employed detectives, and Lyons was caught in St. Paul and returned here, where it was ascertained he had been married four or five times before coming to Sioux Falls.

SSS THE BEST TONIC

In S. S. S. Nature has provided a tonic suited to every requirement of the system when in a debilitated, run down condition. It contains no strong minerals or drugs, but is a pleasant vegetable preparation. You can find no better remedy for toning up the nerves and bringing refreshing, restful sleep when in a low state of health, or sick and worn out with work or worry.

S. S. S. improves the appetite, aids the digestion and reinforces the system, and its good effects are seen almost from the first dose. It acts promptly in cases of chronic dyspepsia, indigestion and all stomach troubles, and does away with the uncomfortable fullness, nausea, shortness of breath, drowsiness and dizziness that so often come after eating.

S. S. S. is not only the best tonic but possesses alternative or purifying properties, and if there is any taint, humor or poison in the blood it searches it out, and removes it. Many times a low state of health is due to a bad condition of the blood and can only be remedied by a blood purifier and tonic combined, or such a remedy as S. S. S.

If you suffer from debility, insomnia, nervousness, loss of appetite, bad digestion, or any of the symptoms of a disordered blood, nothing will so soon put your blood in good condition, invigorate and tone up the system as S. S. S.

The Beverage of Health

Pure beer—Schlitz beer—is the best drink in the world for you.

The malt is a food; the hops a tonic. The alcohol—only 3½ per cent—is an aid to digestion; a healthful stimulant.

The most healthy nations in the world—the most hardy, most energetic—drink the most of it.

But the beer must be pure. Impurity means harmful germs. That is why we brew Schlitz in absolute cleanliness—why we filter even the air that touches it and sterilize every bottle.

And the beer must be aged. Green beer causes biliousness. That's why we age Schlitz for months before we market it.

Schlitz beer is absolutely pure; it can't harm you. Ask for the Brewery Bottling.

NAPOLEON, As Seen by His Associates

NAPOLÉON'S EVERYDAY MANNER

[Copyright, 1904, by G. L. Kilmer.]

NAPOLÉON had no fixed pose or studied manner for ordinary occasions. The raveness of his youth gradually yielded to a creature of impulse even in the presence of his court. The Duchesse d'Angoulême (Aline, Junot, who knew him in his home life before and after his rise to importance, says that a change took place in Napoleon when he became a great figure in Paris, especially in regard to attention to his person. To illustrate this she recalls a habit of his earlier days when visiting the home of her mother.

"One of the things to which my mother had a particular dislike was the smell of wet, dry boots put to the fire to dry. To her this smell was so disgusting that she frequently left the room and did not return till the boots had been thoroughly dried and removed from the fire. But this was followed by another—namely, the creaking noise produced by the dry sole, to which I have also a great antipathy. Now, in those disastrous times, when it was a matter of luxury to ride in a hackney coach, it may easily be conceived that those who had but sufficient to pay the price of a dinner did not take great delight in splashing others, but retained sufficient philosophy to sell their shoes or boots by walking. My mother admitted the justice of the remark, but she nevertheless held her perfume handkerchief to her nose whenever Bonaparte placed his little feet upon the fender. He at length perceived this, and, being at that time exceedingly afraid of displeasing my mother, he would prevail upon our maid to brush his boots before he came in.

"After the 13th of Vendémiaire (Oct. 4) solid boots were out of the question. Bonaparte never went out but in a handsome carriage.

Napoleon's bearing in the inner circle of home is variously commented upon by those who observed him as casual visitors and those who served the household.

"He was always extremely polite to everybody," says Mlle. Avril, one of Josephine's attendants, "and never accepted the slightest service from any one without thanking him. He never addressed his own valets except as 'monsieur.' When he passed through their anterooms, he always bowed to them. It was just the same when the emperor came to see the empress. He never spoke to us without great politeness and often with great kindness.

In the empress's room, Napoleon, according to Mme. Durand, lady in waiting to Maria Louisa, showed himself "amiable, gay and familiar. If he were present at her toilet, he would amuse himself by teasing her, pinching her neck and cheeks. Did she object, he would take her in his arms, kiss her, call her 'great stupid,' and peace would be made. He annoyed her principal ladies in waiting in a thousand ways. It often happened that he received an answer back, and then he continued the discussion and was highly delighted if he succeeded in making angry one of the younger ladies, some of whom were unaccustomed to the manners of a court and who used to say to him things that were very amusing from their simplicity."

"What is no less surprising," says Coulincourt, who served Napoleon as a soldier and ambassador, "is the ease with which, in his family circle, he could become simple and almost familiar."

M. de Bausset, prefect of the palace, says:

"I dare affirm that few men, in their domestic life, have been more equable in temper, more kindly in manner."

Prince Metternich, the Austrian minister and a lifelong political enemy, declares:

"In his private life Napoleon was simple and often even inclined to spoil people. He pushed his indulgence some times to the verge of weakness."

Mme. de Remusat, who is always conspicuous among Napoleon's critics, gives an uncomplimentary view of his everyday manner. The following extracts are taken from her memoirs, translated by Mrs. Cashel Hoey and Mr. John Lillie. Describing his appearance at public functions and fetes, Mme. de Remusat says:

"He could never get over the precipitation which gave him an ill bred air. 'I am not made for pleasure,' he would say in a melancholy tone.

"The emperor walked about everywhere, preceded by chamberlains who announced his presence. On his approach every voice was hushed; no one left his place; the ladies stood up, waiting for the insignificant and frequently ungracious remarks which he would address to them. He never remembered a name, and his first question almost invariably was, 'And what do you call yourself?' There was, and not a woman present on those occasions who did not rejoice when he moved away from her vicinity. This reminds me of an anecdote about Gretry. One day Gretry, who was tired of this perpetual question and perhaps a little annoyed at not having produced a more lasting impression, answered to the emperor's rudely uttered 'And you—who are you?' in a sharp, impatient tone, 'Sire, I am still Gretry.' Ever afterward the emperor recognized him perfectly.

"After 1806 he almost always dined alone with his wife, except when the court was at Fontainebleau. He would then invite guests to his table. He had all courses of the dinner placed before him at once, and he ate without paying any attention to his food, helping himself to whatever was at hand.

"He had not any of the delicacy that is ordinarily imparted by training and education and would make his toilet in the most thorough fashion in the presence of any person whomsoever. In the same way, if he got impatient while his valet was dressing him, he would fly into a passion, heedless of all respect for himself or others. He would throw any garment that did not please him on the floor or into the fire.

"Among other destructive habits he had that of stirring the wood fires with his foot, thereby scorching his shoes and boots. This generally happened when he was in a passion. At such times he would violently kick the blazing logs in the nearest fireplace.

"He could not bear any restraint, and being obliged to appear affable and in a good humor on a certain day and at a certain hour was a joke which he listened to with a smile.

"He never missed an opportunity of carrying out his favorite system, which was to keep one's mind what he called 'breathless'—that is to say, constantly anxious."

On the intellectual side, however, Mme. de Remusat is forced to confess that Napoleon was most remarkable and in ordinary times pleasing.

"It was always a great pleasure to me to hear him talk," she says, "or, rather, to hear him hold forth, for his conversation was composed generally of long monologues; not that he objected to replies when he was in a good humor, but, for many reasons, it was not always easy to answer him. He spoke badly, but his language was generally animated and brilliant. His grammatical inaccuracies lent his sentences an unexpected strength."

[From a portrait by Delphin, drawn in Berlin, 1804.]

dressed to him without ever quitting the tone or the limits of a business discussion, and I never experienced the slightest difficulty in saying to him what I believed to be the truth, even when it was not calculated to please him."

Göhler says: "Not only did Bonaparte not in the least disagree with projects submitted for discussion to the council of state, but he encouraged it. He tolerated everything; no objection could make him angry, and it was the one who had vexed him most whom he generally asked to dinner."

This phase of Napoleon's manner may be closed with the impressions of Captain Maitland, commanding the English ship Belliphon, on board of which the man who had been conquered at Waterloo embarked in 1815.

"It may seem strange," says Maitland, "that an English officer should be prepossessed in favor of a man who has caused such calamities to his country, but that man had the power of pleasing to such a degree that there are few people who could have sat at table with him every day for nearly a month, as I did, without a feeling of regret that a man endowed with so many attractive qualities should have been reduced to the state in which I saw him."

Napoleon's valet, Constant, tells of his master's precipitancy and impatience at table and on disrobing for the night. He preferred fingers to forks and scattered his wardrobe like a spoiled child.

Little bands of inch-wide gold braid are decorated with tiny brown velvet buttons, affording an effective trimming, and square encrustations of embroidery, which are used on the shirred back, are edged likewise with this. The skirt is in double effect, the upper portion fitted with rows of shirring over the hips, and graduated tucks between at knee length and form a heading for the deep-shirred flounce. A shallow shaped band of princess haircloth is used in the drop skirt to give stability to the masses of sheer material. The lower flounce is shallow in front and considerably deeper in the back, forming a short train.

Chairman Herrmann and the "Farming" Problem. Its Pros and Cons--The Long and Successful Career of Charley (Kid) Nichols.

The chairman of the national baseball commission, Garry Herrmann, has taken much time in which to admit the truth of the self evident proposition that "farming," properly limited, is something that cannot be escaped. Mr. Herrmann, in his desire to do away with baseball abuses, has tried to down "farming." Now, in his capacity of club owner, he admits that the position taken by him in his capacity as president of the commission is not tenable. He is honest about it and has come out with the statement that "farming" should be recognized and regulated. He has a couple of men that cost his club about $5,000, neither of whom can be used this summer. To give them away would be a waste of good money; to sell them to minor league clubs would mean a loss of something like $4,000 probably.

Mr. Herrmann's idea is to frame a rule by which players purchased by Cowboys and captained by Jimmy Manning. In speaking of that game Nichols said: "I shall never forget the first time I pitched professional ball. Nervous? Why, of course I was. But along toward the third inning the nervousness began to wear off. "We won, but only by the skin of our teeth. The final score was 7 to 0, and, as luck would have it, I was responsible for the winning run. "When it came my turn to bat in the ninth inning the score was 6 to 5 in Omaha's favor. "By some lucky accident I connected with a good one and lined it out for three bags. Two men were on bases, and of course they trotted home, making the score 7 to 0 in our favor. "I rode back to the hotel that day in the same carriage with the captain and manager, and they could not do enough for me. "After leaving Omaha the team came home and played a series, and I won every game I pitched. I lost my first game to the Topekas, who were then the champions. "I remember that I held them down to two hits until the seventh inning, when they piled in seven runs on me. "I finished the season with the Kansas Citys and at the beginning of the succeeding season signed with the Memphis team of the Southern league. "The first game I pitched was against the famous St. Louis Browns, and I won the game, 5 to 3. Manning heard of this, and for weeks and weeks I was besieged by letters and telegrams from Manning begging me to come back. "I stayed with the Memphis club until July of that year, when the Southern league broke up. "I then went back to Kansas City, finished the season with Manning's big league clubs and not needed immediately may be sold to minor clubs with a proviso that the major club has an option on the player's services and may claim him in advance of any other purchaser at any time before the drafting season shall begin. The idea is a good one, though most of the big league clubs that have men that they wish to keep under cover manage to do it without the aid of any rules. There are many ways to evade the laws against "farming," and the managers have discovered enough of them to worry along on.

Mr. Herrmann's point, however, is well taken, and his suggestion is a good one. The majors are the leagues that invest money in players, and some protection is due them after they have paid liberally for a man's release, have footed hotel and railroad bills and have then discovered that the man is not as good as they thought.

A baseball player for sixteen years is the record of Charley (Kid) Nichols, the new manager of the St. Louis Nationals. Few players can boast of having entered the ranks of the professionals at so early an age as did Nichols, and fewer still can claim the distinction of having earned a living at the game for sixteen consecutive years. Especially is this so of pitchers. Nichols, in his long experience, has played only one position.

The average twirler loses his speed or acquires a "glass arm" when he has been at the game about five years. Many a player who will hold down an outfield in some obscure minor league the coming season and who has done the same thing for numerous seasons past was formerly among the star slab artists of the major league.

But Nichols' arm is still good. The sixteen years of steady pitching have done little to detract from the speed, the control and the curves of the man who during the nineties was such an able factor in winning pennants for the Boston team.

Nichols began his professional career when but sixteen years old. That was in 1887, when the Kansas City Western league team was known as the team and won eighteen out of the twenty games I pitched. "I was sold to St. Joseph the next year, but refused to play with that team, owing to the poor salary I was offered. "Selee was then with the Omaha team, and I accepted an offer he made me. I joined the team on May 3, and at that time it was in last place. "Well, I finished the season with the Omahas and succeeded in winning forty games out of forty-eight I pitched, and the team finished the season in first place. "When the season ended Selee made me promise to go with him wherever he went the succeeding season. That is how I happened to go to Boston, for Selee was offered the management of the Boston team, and I signed with him. "Bob Lowe, who had been playing with Milwaukee, and Herman Long, who had been playing with Kansas City, went to Boston at the same time, and, strange to say, we three played together on the Boston team for the succeeding twelve years. "Do I remember the first game I pitched in the National league? Yes, I remember it distinctly. It was against the Brooklyn team, and I won it by a score of 5 to 2. "The games that stand out most conspicuously in my memory in my long career in the National league are those played in the final series with Baltimore in 1897. "Baltimore had won the pennant for three successive years--1894, 1895 and 1896. Boston had won it the three previous seasons, and the winning of the flag in 1897 meant a great deal. "For a month previous to that last series Boston and Baltimore had been alternating in the lead, and when we went to Baltimore for those last three games the Orioles led us by one point in the standing. "It was a great series. People all over the country were interested in it, and I remember that at that time I received innumerable letters and telegrams. "The duty of pitching in the first game fell to my lot. We won it and finally captured the series, making the coveted pennant our own."

Investments by Jesuits. It is estimated that the investments of the Jesuits in Europe amount to four billions of dollars. Much of the money is invested in German government bonds.

Pennsylvania Oil Products Except Those of the Rest of the World. According to a report of the geological survey of the United States government, now nearly ready for publication, petroleum was first discovered by Col. Drake less than half a century ago in Pennsylvania near Titusville. Men in those days had no notion that petroleum was among the necessities of existence. A tallow dip or a wax candle illuminated sufficiently the night's activities and a blazing log wood fire left no room for desire for another kind of heater. Petroleum might have been counted a superfluity, but instead it sprang into immediate favor, and now its list of popular by-products grows longer every day.

The total production of crude petroleum from 1859 to the end of 1903 has been no less than 1,165,280,727 barrels. That means that if two and one half feet were allowed for the height of a barrel and if these barrels filled with all the domestic oil that has been produced were laid so that their heads touched they would encircle the earth two and one-quarter times.

Of this total Pennsylvania and New York produced 53.9 per cent; Ohio, 24.3 per cent; West Virginia, 11.3 per cent; Indiana, 3.9 per cent; California, 3.6 per cent; Texas, 2.1 per cent, leaving 3 per cent to be supplied by the states of Kansas, Colorado, Louisiana, Illinois, Missouri, Indian Territory, Wyoming, Michigan and Oklahoma.

A Wrong Sentiment. Whenever a man tries to accomplish something there is always an element which refers disparagingly to his "past." In this age of false standards it is not surprising that young men have "pasts." The social treat, the endorsement of thoroughbreds, and a long list of other wrong sentiments, concerning youth, tend to give men a "past" which haunts them after they have learned by bitter experience the right road. This referring to a man's "past" is one of the wicked and unfair American habits--as if a man who has done wrong does not deserve credit for afterward abandoning his course and becoming honest and useful. A man's "past" should never date from his youth, for usually he must learn by experience that what he has been led to believe was "smart" was not, and wrong. Men should deserve credit that, having had a "past," they afterward had the strength of character to become honest and useful.--Atchison (Kas.) Globe.

Complete Combustion of Coal. Sir John Primrose, at a recent banquet at Glasgow, made reference to a new process for obtaining a complete combustion of coal. He said that the burning of the coal takes place in a chamber surrounded by a water jacket, separated from the boiler, and that only the gaseous products of combustion are used for heating the boiler. According to this new process a steamer would require less than one-half of the room now used for the boilers in order to generate the same amount of power, and the weight of the heating apparatus would also be diminished more than one-half.

Fish Put to Many Uses. In Gloucester, the "king town" of fish, the humble cod has been utilized with success for making leather for shoes and gloves. In Egypt men walk on sandals made from the skins of Red Sea fish. In Russia certain peasant costumes are beautifully trimmed with the skins of a fine food fish, the turbot. Bookbinders in Europe are binding books with eelskin.

Superstition in Russia. During a drought in the government of Perm, Russia, last summer, a deacon had a lightning rod put on his house. The peasants were greatly interested in it, but when they learned that it was used to divert the thunderbolts, they got greatly excited, and concluded that it had caused the drought. They promptly proceeded to demolish it, and a rain happening to come along soon thereafter, they were confirmed in their belief.

Leading Producers of Iron Ore. The leading iron ore states are Minnesota, with an output of 15,000,000 tons; Michigan, with 11,000,000, and Alabama, with 3,500,000 tons.
